When ants invade...

Keep them away the less-toxic way!

Move trash away from your home.

Plug up holes and cracks so ants can't get in.

And bring out the bait stakes if you must.

Before you reach for a can of spray, consider controlling pests outside your home without chemicals. Water from your sprinklers and rain washes pesticides off the yard and into storm drains—polluting our local creeks, the Delta, Bay and Ocean. Pesticides are poisons that kill pests, but they can also harm people, pets, and other creatures in our environment. For less toxic ways to keep ants away...
